Ben Bradley of the New Hampshire Hospital Association Named BIA Champion of Commerce

Concord, NH - The Business and Industry Association of New Hampshire (BIA) has named Ben Bradley, Vice President of State Government Relations for the New Hampshire Hospital Association (NHHA), a 2026 BIA Champion of Commerce in recognition of his leadership, advocacy and longstanding commitment to New Hampshire's business and health care communities.

Each year, the BIA recognizes individuals whose extraordinary service and dedication to its mission have made a meaningful impact on the state's business climate. Bradley was selected for his nearly 20 years of experience in government relations and his role as a trusted advocate and partner on complex health care policy issues at the State House.

"With nearly 20 years of professional experience in government relations, Ben is a key advocate for the medical community and an important partner and ally in BIA's advocacy efforts," said BIA President & CEO Michael Skelton. "We rely on Ben to help the BIA navigate the litany of health care-related policy issues at the State House, and he has been a trusted voice to our policy team on complex legislation. The BIA is fortunate to have many great trade association partners, and the NH Hospital Association is one of the strongest, thanks to the engagement and leadership of Ben."

Steve Ahnen, President of the NHHA, praised Bradley's recognition and contributions to the health care community.

"Ben is deeply respected for his thoughtful leadership, collaborative approach and unwavering commitment to advancing policies that support New Hampshire's hospitals, health care workforce and patients," said Ahnen. "This recognition is incredibly well deserved and reflects the tremendous impact Ben has had not only within the health care community, but across New Hampshire's broader business environment."

Bradley works closely with state policymakers, health care leaders and business organizations to advance legislative and regulatory priorities that strengthen access to care and support New Hampshire's health care system.

About the NHHA

Hospitals have been collaborating through the New Hampshire Hospital Association since 1934. The NHHA mission is to lead through advocacy, education and information in support of its member hospitals and health systems as they strive to improve the health of the individuals and communities they serve.
